

Name: Sankha Subhra Nath

Designation: Associate Professor, ICFAI School of Architecture, IFHE

Teaching areas: Architectural Design, History of architecture, Building Construction and materials

Research areas: Environmental governance, Human-land-water interactions, Water commons, Women participation in water associations, Nature-based solutions

Education:

@PhD: AKTU Lucknow, (Jan 2020 to Present)

Post-Graduation: MSc in Urban Management and Development, Erasmus University, (Class 2021)

Post-Graduation: Masters in Architecture (Theory & Design), CEPT University, (Class 2012)

Graduation: Bachelors in Architecture, Jadavpur University, (Class 2008)

Selected Publications:

1. An enquiry into the causes of vanishing Anjana river in West Bengal, India. Presented at International Institute of Asian Studies (2022), <https://www.iias.asia/events/enquiry-causes-vanishing-anjana-river-west-bengal-india>
2. Anjana Now, Published in Prarambhik (2021)
3. Exploring the use of land value capture instruments by land pooling to avoid urban flood in newly developed planned satellite towns: Case of New Town, Kolkata, India, Presented at Financing Urban Resilience through Land Value Capture, IHS, Rotterdam (2021)
4. Demarcating Peri Urban Areas of Kolkata through computer modeling from demographic data, Published in IEEE Xplorer; doi: 10.1109/IC3A48958.2020.233304. (2020)
5. Teaching Architecture in remote parts of India (book chapter), Published in Learning Architecture, Edited by Kulbhushan Jain; ISBN 978-81-908528-3-8 (2019)