

Anti-Ragging Norms and Ethical Code of Conduct

Guest Lecture

The club organized a guest lecture on "Anti-Ragging Norms and Ethical Code of Conduct," presented by Ms Sarita Tressy Nair, Director at Think Surf Media. The session, was attended by 28 female and 23 male MBA students, highlighted the importance of fostering a respectful and inclusive campus environment. Ms Nair elaborated on the legal and ethical implications of ragging, emphasizing the responsibility of students to uphold a culture of mutual respect. She also connected the topic to broader life skills, advocating for the integration of strong ethical practices into both academic and professional settings.

Students praised the session for its focus on essential communication aspects such as mastering verbal and non-verbal skills, active listening, adaptability, and building confidence. Feedback reflected that the lecture not only raised awareness about anti-ragging measures but also equipped students with strategies to cultivate a positive and ethical approach in their interactions. The event served as a significant reminder of the role of ethics and communication in shaping a cohesive and respectful community.
